Position Your State to Access $50 Billion

Rural Health Funding

Public Knowledge® guides you from planning to submission, ensuring a strong, CMS-compliant application.

The Rural Health Transformation Program provides funding over five years to strengthen care in rural communities. States have until December 31, 2025, to submit their applications to CMS. This program represents a significant opportunity to build more sustainable rural health systems.

Why Action Is Needed Now

Developing a strong application requires:

Crafting a detailed transformation plan that meets CMS expectations

Aligning diverse rural stakeholders and community partners

Designing strategies that address access, outcomes, technology, and long-term sustainability

Considering unique needs of Tribal communities and tailoring approaches accordingly

The timeline is tight, and the requirements can feel daunting, but the process becomes much easier with a partner to guide you along the way.

How We Support Your Success

Public Knowledge® works alongside states to make the process manageable and effective.

We can help:

Create CMS-compliant transformation plans

Build collaboration among rural hospitals, clinics, and providers

Enable timely implementation and sustainable improvements

Work with rural and Tribal communities to design strategies that deliver real impact

Conduct an analysis of alternatives to systematically compare options, validate assumptions, and identify the most effective, feasible, and sustainable solutions

Leverage our experience to quickly, effectively, and with high-fidelity to distribute $50 million in ARPA funds

Take the Next Step

There is still time! Learn how we can support your application.
